To use random table encounters, simply roll a die to determine which encounter your players will face. You can use a d20, a d100, or any other type of die that you like. The higher the number you roll, the more difficult the encounter will be.

Once you have rolled a number, consult the appropriate table to find out what encounter your players will face. The tables below are divided into different categories, such as "Combat Encounters" and "Non-Combat Encounters".

Combat Encounters

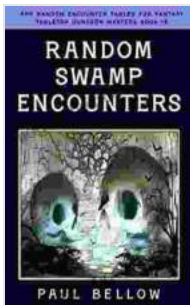

Roll	Encounter
1-5	A group of goblins attacks the party.
6-10	The party is ambushed by a group of bandits.
11-15	The party encounters a group of orcs.
16-20	The party fights a giant spider.

Non-Combat Encounters

Roll	Encounter
1-5	The party meets a friendly traveler who provides them with information about the area.
6-10	The party discovers a hidden treasure chest.
11-15	The party encounters a group of merchants who are willing to trade goods with them.

16- The party finds a lost child who needs to be returned to their village.
